

Daphna Canetti is a tenured assistant professor of Political Science at the University of Haifa. With $2.25M granted by the US Institutes of Health and by other foundations, she uses psychopolitical frameworks to study reactions of Israelis and Palestinians to war and terrorism. She has published in journals such as Political Psychology, Journal of Conflict Resolution, Political Research Quarterly, Political Behavior, Political Studies, Journal of Consulting and Clinical Psychology. She has won the Roberta Sigel Award, received the Fulbright scholarship and the Helen Kellogg Fellowship, and was recently selected as the Rice Family Foundation Visiting Professor at the MacMillan Center, Yale University.