

John Transue is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at the University of Illinois Springfield. “Previously I was an Assistant Professor at Duke University. I earned my PhD in 2001 from the University of Minnesota. In graduate school, I attended the Summer Institute in Political Psychology at Ohio State and served as editorial assistant of Political Psychology. I have been a member of ISPP since 1995 and I have immensely enjoyed attending several ISPP conferences. My work has been published in Political Psychology, the American Journal of Political Science, Personality and Social Psychology Bulletin, Annual Review of Psychology, and elsewhere.”
