Political Psychology of Global Conflict, Protest and Reconciliation

The theme of the 36th Annual Scientific Meeting of the International Society of Political Psychology was chosen in the wake of the promise and potential wrought by the upheavals surrounding the Arab Spring, the global economic crisis and other changes the world has seen to date. How can protest and violence catalyze change on the world stage? How might processes focused on reconciliation help potentiate enduring prospects for peace and resolution between groups with long history of internecine hatred and dispute? What role does identity politics, religion, ethnicity, or otherwise, play in either precipitating or possibly ameliorating hostility at the individual, community and societal levels? This topic was designed to allow for a full exploration of the political and psychological factors involved in addressing these questions.

The 2013 meeting is being held at The Political Psychology & Decision Making Program (POPDM) of the Lauder School of Government, Diplomacy and Strategy, IDC Herzliya - Herzliya, Israel. We are grateful to the Program Chair, Professor Alex Mintz, Dean of the IDC School, for sponsoring this meeting and to Professor Mintz and his co-chairs, Daphna Canetti and Pazit Ben-Nun Bloom, and their section chairs for putting together such a stimulating group of panels. In keeping with our established theme, the organizers have elicited over 100 papers, posters and roundtable appearances that deal with the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, including 30 that deal directly with peace issues between the Israelis and Arabs. This represents one of the largest concentrations of presentations dealing with the Middle East peace process in our organization's history. In addition, scholars from over 42 different countries have registered to attend the conference, demonstrating the truly increasing international scope of our organization, a goal we strongly hope to enhance in coming years.

In addition, we will once again have the Summer Academy for the third year, following on extremely successful runs in Istanbul and Chicago. We all owe Tereza Capelos a debt of gratitude for her selfless and exceptional service running this institution since its inception.

We hope that everyone in the Society takes the opportunity to read our journal, Political Psychology, edited by Alex Mintz. In addition, this coming year will show the rebirth of Advances in Political Psychology, under the capable leadership of Howie Lavine.

I would like to express my personal thanks to Sev Bennett, our new Executive Director for her exceptionally hard work professionalizing our Central Office for the first time in our history. I know that many of you have benefitted from interacting with her over the course of the past year, and more of you will do so over the coming years. She has put in enormous effort to improve and streamline all of our business processes and you should all experience the benefits of these strategies over the coming year, as these improvements in the website, registration and membership processes become more efficient.

I would also like to thank our exceptional Treasurer, Andrea Grove, for her five years of dedicated service to the organization. We are all grateful for her wisdom and careful guidance. Please welcome her successor, Felicia Pratto, who has graciously agreed to take on this important task. We are very grateful to have her insight as we move ahead. I would also like to thank Melinda Jackson for her long service as newsletter editor. We hope to have a replacement for her shortly.

Please join with me in celebrating the accomplishments of our award winners. A committee chaired by Alina Oxendine awarded the Best Dissertation Prize to Jonathan Renshon for his dissertation "Fighting for Status." The Markwell Committee, headed by Daron Shaw, awarded this Media prize, which is given for "outstanding work dealing with the media and political psychology, which is open to any institution, journalist, or other media source that demonstrates concern for the political psychological factors that are central to the ISPP" to Sasha Issenberg for having "almost single-handedly dragged social science methods into the consciousness of the cognoscenti." The best book award committee, which included Ann Crigler, Elizabeth Theiss-Morse, Peter Suedfeld awarded the Alexander George best book award to Richard Ned Lebow for his book, The Politics and Ethics of Identity and the David Sears book award to Howard Lavine, Chris Johnston and Marco Steenbergen for The Ambivalent Partisan: How Critical Loyalty Promotes Democracy. The Erik Erikson Award for Distinguished Early Career Achievement was given to co-recipients Daphna Canetti and Phillip Hammack; that committee was chaired by Paul Nesbitt-Larking, who will succeed Stanley Feldman as ISPP President. Past ISPP President Bert Klandermans was selected as recipient of the Lasswell award and Past President Kristen Monroe won the Sanford Award; this joint committee was chaired by Daniel Bar-Tal. The Jeanne Knutson award, chaired by Kristen Monroe, was given to Past President Janusz Reykowski. The Roberta Sigel Junior Scholar Paper Award went to Lasse Laustsen and Michael Bang Petersen for "Winning Faces Vary by Ideology: Evolutionary Psychology and the Role of Candidate Facial Traits in Democratic Elections", selected by a committee chaired by Cindy Kam. Please join me in congratulating all our deserving recipients and in thanking all our committee members!

Finally, I hope all of you enjoy the many intellectual and social events planned for this conference, including the Opening Reception, the Awards Reception or the Junior Scholars' Social Hour. I hope each of you has a wonderful time at the conference.

Rose McDermott, ISPP President

Welcome To The 36Th Annual Meeting Of The International Society Of Political Psychology!

We are delighted you are here and hope you enjoy the conference and your time in Israel at the Interdisciplinary Center (IDC) Herzliya. A thriving democracy that is nonetheless at the epicenter of one of the world's most intractable conflicts, Israel offers an ideal setting for a conference with the 'Political Psychology of Global Conflict, Protest and Reconciliation' as its central theme. Enjoy the 2013 ISPP Annual Meeting in Israel!

It is important to note that this conference contains a 'thematic chain' of panels and talks. Several thematic keynote addresses by professors John Jost, Ervin Staub, and Daniel Bar-Tal have been scheduled. In addition, the program features a fascinating chain of thematic sessions that deal with the Middle East reconciliation and the peace process. Next to the thematic chain, our section chairs have compiled an exciting program, featuring roundtables, paper panels, and poster sessions.

We also feature several panels and events that put junior scholars center stage, including the Mentoring Tea event, and the Teaching Political Psychology roundtable. Nearly 500 participants from over 40 countries throughout the world, including all continents, have come to the IDC Herzliya to exchange ideas and learn from each other. Conference presentations are organized by theme in 14 sections, drawing on the greater repertoire of the psychological sciences. We hope that all of you will enjoy and participate in an exciting intellectual exchange that will enrich the field of political psychology and help us better understand the dynamics of our contentious times. This year, we continue some innovative ways to increase discussion, engagement and the sharing of ideas that were initiated so successfully during the past few years. Log onto ISPP's Facebook page: to get conference updates, chat and see videos of key presentations. You can also log onto the POP-DM website for additional information on the conference and on the program in Political Psychology and Decision Making (POP-DM) (<http://portal.idc.ac.il/en/PADA/MainPage/Pages/POPDM.aspx>).

Putting all participants and ideas into a coherent program is not an easy task, yet we were extremely fortunate to have some amazing individuals working with us to create what we hope is a highly engaging and successful program. We first need to thank our section chairs who put the individual proposals into more than 150 panels.

Our thanks go out to Anca Minescu, Gizem Arikan, Linda R. Tropp, Keren Yarchi Milo, Laura Taylor, David Brule, Catarina Kinnvall, Rick Lau, Jojanneke van der Toorn, Nancy Hite, Steven Redd, Marco Steenbergen, Peter Hatemi, and Brian Hall. Special thanks go to Hila Ziv, Shay Windman, and Dana Zamir for all of their work on the ground in Israel. Our thanks also go to Sev Bennett, from ISPP's Central Office for her work on the conference. Rose McDermott, President of the ISPP, deserves our heartfelt gratitude for her advice and suggestions along the way. Finally, our biggest thank you goes to Eitam Pinter, our assistant. Eitam's help has been absolutely vital at every step of our planning process. We cannot thank all of these people enough for all the work they have done!
Enjoy the conference and have a wonderful stay in Israel!

Self-Censorship as a Socio-Political-Psychological Phenomenon: Conception and Research

Daniel Bar-Tal, School of Education, Tel Aviv University, Self-censorship of information, defined as an act of intentionally and voluntarily withholding information from others in the absence of formal obstacles, serves as an obstacle to the proper functioning of a democratic society, because it prevents free access to information, freedom of expression, and flow of information. In societies involved in intractable conflict, this phenomenon is of key importance, as it blocks information that may shed new light on the conflict. In such societies, a variety of potential costs to both the self and the ingroup deter society members from sharing information when such information contradicts the dominant conflict-supporting narrative or presents the group in a negative light. Indeed, self-censorship of information pertaining to the group's relationship with the outgroup is a wide phenomenon in societies involved in intractable intergroup conflict, thus constituting an effective societal mechanism in controlling the flow of information in such societies. The address examines this phenomenon from various angles, both theoretically and empirically, addressing its nature, motivations, relevant factors in its emergence, and wider consequences. It also discusses the process of breaking the silence of self-censorship with its antecedents and consequences.

A Theory of System Justification

John T. Jost, New York University, According to system justification theory, which was first proposed by Jost and Banaji (1994), people are motivated to defend, bolster, and justify aspects of the societal status quo - but not necessarily at a conscious level of awareness. In this talk, Professor Jost will summarize evidence bearing on nine major postulates derived from system justification theory. Topics of special emphasis will include stereotyping, political ideology, and the legitimation of social and economic inequality.

Junior Scholars Welcome 2013

Welcome to the 36th annual meeting of the International Society of Political Psychology! This year's event, themed Political Psychology of Global Conflict, Protest and Reconciliation, promises a wide variety of innovative and inspiring research presented by junior and senior scholars from all over the world. I am pleased to announce that this year the Junior Scholars Committee (JSC) has organized a number of exciting events, which we hope you will attend.

The Junior Scholars Social Hour offers an informal opportunity for networking among peers in a relaxed atmosphere. Always well-attended, the social hour is a great place to meet old friends, as well as new ones! Drinks will be provided. See you on Monday, July 8 at 3:30 PM.

JSC members Monica Gerber and Jojanneke van der Toorn have arranged this year's JSC Mentoring Tea, which will take place on Tuesday July 9 at 6:45 PM. For those who registered for this event, the Mentoring Tea provides a one-on-one interaction between junior scholars and senior scholars in the field. Mentees are encouraged to discuss their research interests and projects. We hope that after this event mentees and mentors maintain communication.

The JSC Professional Development coordinators Sanne Rijkhoff and Laura Taylor have arranged two exciting roundtables that focus on professional development. The roundtables are intended to initiate a dialogue between junior and senior scholars. On Tuesday, July 9 at 3:30pm we will host the Teaching Political Psychology Roundtable, which will focus on teaching experiences, pedagogy, and strategies for emerging scholars interested in teaching political psychology classes. Speakers include: Christ'I DeLandtsheer (University of Antwerp), Rick Herrmann (Ohio State University), Rick Lau (Rutgers University), and Linda Tropp (University of Massachusetts-Amherst).

On Thursday, July 11 at 1:45 PM we will host the Translational Research and Public Policy Roundtable. This roundtable includes political psychology scholars who have been successful in designing and developing translational research, empirically-informed interventions, and formulated policy advice for decision-makers. Daniel Bar-Tal (Tel Aviv University), Paul Dekker (Tilburg University), Peter Suedfeld (University of British Columbia), Ervin Staub (University of Massachusetts-Amherst), and Yaacov Vertzberger (The Hebrew University of Jerusalem) will share their experiences and insights.

Furthermore, the JSC had the pleasure to award 13 Travel Grants to assist junior scholars to attend this year's conference. Congratulations once again!

In addition to our presence at this year's conference, the JSC continues to manage several online services. Especially for this year's event we created the 2013 ISPP Annual Meeting Facebook Group (facebook.com/groups/ISPP2013/), to facilitate the exchange between conference participants during and after the conference. Follow the ISPP Facebook page (facebook.com/ISPPJuniorScholars) and Twitter (@ISPP_JSC) to stay up-to-date regarding upcoming call for papers and funding opportunities. For our Blog (<http://www.ispp.org/jsc/blog>) we regularly solicit contributions from junior scholars on a variety of topics and we have started publishing interviews with senior scholars of our field.

On a final note, I would like to thank everyone who has helped the JSC, either by participating in one of our events, by contributing to our blog, or by assisting us 'behind the scenes'. A special thanks to all members of the 2012-2013 Junior Scholars Committee, it has been wonderful to be working with such an enthusiastic and talented group of junior scholars!

As always, we appreciate any comments, advice or feedback on how we can best serve you, you can reach us at jsc@ispp.org.

Enjoy the conference and your stay in Israel!

Roberta Sigel Junior Scholar Paper Award

The Sigel Award is given to junior scholar authors of the best papers presented at annual scientific meetings. Nominees must be current ISPP members.

ISPP first announced this award at its Vancouver meeting in 1996. Professor Sigel, whom the award honors, was a distinguished professor of political science at Rutgers University. She was the author and editor of seven books and many articles and book chapters, mostly in the areas of political socialization and democratic citizenship. She had many leadership roles in the American Political Science Association and has served as program chair, Vice-President and President of ISPP.

All ISPP junior scholars who are current dues paid members of ISPP and had their paper accepted for the 2013 summer meeting/conference are eligible to be considered for the award to be presented during the 2014 meeting. Junior scholars are students (graduate or undergraduate) and faculty who received their Ph.D. within the last eight years. Each (of the two) award carries a cash prize of $250.

There are two prizes with slightly different criteria to accommodate the authorship and publication practices in the various disciplines represented in ISPP:

- The first award is given to the best paper written by junior scholars only. In the case of multiple authors, all co-authors must be junior scholars.
- The second award is conferred to the best paper with a junior scholar first author. This award allows for a senior scholar co-author.

Please nominate (self-nominations are encouraged) eligible papers only (posters are not eligible) and submit them to the email below by February 17, 2014. Papers previously submitted to the Sigel Award are not eligible. All submissions will be read by the award committee, consisting of members of the Junior Scholar Committee as well as senior scholars. Two papers will be selected strictly according to scientific excellence and their contribution to research in political psychology.

Best Dissertation Award Announcement 2014

The International Society of Political Psychology is pleased to announce a call for nominations for the Best Dissertation Award, given for the first time at the 2008 Annual Meeting in Paris.

All Ph.D. dissertations within the field of political psychology are eligible for consideration, regardless of home discipline. Dissertations should represent an independent piece of research that is the sole work of the author and gains the highest degree at the author's university.

Nominations are due by Feb. 17, 2014, for dissertations completed and successfully defended between Jan. 1, 2013, and Dec. 31, 2013. Nominees must be current ISPP members. Nominations should be submitted electronically and must include a one-page abstract (300 word), a 10-page (3,000 word) summary of the dissertation, and a letter of recommendation from the thesis adviser or committee member, all in English.

Send nominations to the 2014 Award Committee Chair:

Johanna Vollhardt
Clark University
jvollhardt@clarku.edu

The award committee will request a copy of the full dissertation for those selected to participate in the second round evaluation. If the dissertation is written in a language other than English, the full dissertation may be submitted in the original language for the second round evaluation, and at least one qualified reader fluent in that language will be included as a committee member for the second round evaluation.

The 37th Annual Meeting

Ideologies and Ideological Conflict: The Political Psychology of Belief Systems

To be held at: Ergife Palace Hotel, Rome, Italy
July 4-7, 2014

Program Co-chairs: Eva Green (University of Lausanne, Switzerland) and Joanne Miller (University of Minnesota, USA)

Ideologies play a major role in politics and have done so for at least the last three hundred years since the term was coined during the French Revolution. Political views on the left and right shed light on some of the major political conflicts of modern times. New ideological perspectives such as green politics, feminism, and religious fundamentalism have broadened the range of political thought and beliefs that shape the character of political discourse. Political psychology was founded, in part, on the desire to understand political ideologies and their adherents and recent research has richly advanced this line of enquiry. This meeting will highlight the important and diverse contributions of political psychology to an understanding of political ideologies and their effect on politics and conflict in a global context.

We welcome individual papers and posters, as well entire panels and roundtables, which present theory and research on political ideologies and belief systems. In addition to research on traditional lines of ideological conflict, we encourage submissions on newer and emerging belief systems across the world. Research can draw on all of the theoretical perspectives and methods in the field of political psychology including, but not limited to, social communications, personality, leadership, values, cognitive and motivational processes, intergroup relations, collective action, and genetic and biological factors. We are particularly interested in proposals that provide new theoretical or empirical insights into the foundations of ideologies as well as research that examines conditions under which ideologies lead to political conflict and when they can help foster cooperation.

We also welcome panels, papers, posters, and roundtables on any topic in political psychology. The program chairs are interested in bringing together new research from the fields of psychology, political science, sociology, anthropology, biology, communications, economics, and philosophy. We hope to create an exciting intellectual exchange that will enrich political psychology and help us better understand the dynamics of politics in the world today.
