

Call for Applications - International Society of Political Psychology (ISPP) Academy 2024

Join us in Santiago, Chile, from July 1-3, 2024 for the annual ISPP Academy, a unique opportunity to explore both foundational cutting-edge research and methodologies in political psychology!

What's the ISPP Academy?

The ISPP Academy is a three-day workshop that offers training and networking opportunities for those interested in political psychology.

Since 2011, the ISPP has been bringing together early career scholars and professionals interested in political psychology with leading experts in the field to provide training in both foundational research and innovative methodologies, fostering dynamic discussions fueled by insights at the forefront of political psychology research.

The 2024 ISPP Academy will feature lectures and Q&A sessions with prominent political psychologists from around the world. The instructors will teach on a variety of topics. The confirmed instructors include:

- Molly Andrews (University College London, UK)
- Jill Bradbury (University of the Witwatersrand, South Africa)
- Kevin Durrheim (University of Johannesburg, South Africa)
- Stanley Feldman (Stony Brook University, USA)
- Monica Gerber Plüss (Universidad Diego Portales, Chile)
- Leonie Huddy (Stony Brook University, USA)
- Joanne Miller (University of Delaware, USA)
- David Redlawsk (University of Delaware, USA)
- André Sales (Pontifical Catholic University of São Paulo, Brazil)
- Salvador Sandoval (Pontifical Catholic University of São Paulo, Brazil)

The lectures and Q&A sessions will cover a wide range of topics, from conspiracy theories to group identities, authoritarianism to the theory and practice of narrative research.

Beyond the Classroom

Chris Federico (University of Minnesota, USA) and Ana Figueiredo (Universidad de O'Higgins, Chile) will be leading talks on professional development.

Don't miss social hours, networking sessions, and blitz presentations, which provide the perfect platform for Academy fellows to present their research and receive constructive feedback from the participants!

Who is the ISPP Academy for?

We welcome applications from:

- Early career researchers conducting research on political psychology,
- Established faculty keen on exploring topics and methods in political psychology,
- Professionals in industry, journalism, the public sector and non-governmental organizations actively involved in addressing pertinent issues in political psychology.

How do I apply?

1. Complete the application form in this link
2. Send a short CV to theacademy@ispp.org

To receive full consideration, please submit your application materials by 12PM EST on January 30th, 2024. Applications received after this date may not be considered.

- Decisions on applications will be communicated to applicants by mid-February.

All questions should be directed to Dr. Gizem Arikan at theacademy@ispp.org

Registration

The registration fee for the 2024 ISPP Academy is USD$275 This fee also includes automatic registration for the 2024 ISPP Annual Meeting, which will be held in 4-6 July 2024 in the same venue as the Academy. Fellows will also receive free membership in ISPP for one year, which will be effective just after the conclusion of the Annual Meeting.

Funding

ISPP offers a limited number of travel grants for Early Career Scholars to attend the Annual Meeting. Details and the application (once available) can be found HERE.

Visa and Travel

Please check the up-to-date requirements for travel to/from Chile HERE.

We will gladly provide visa support letters upon request!

Notes:

- The lectures at the ISPP Academy will be delivered in English.
- Regrettably, we cannot offer remote or hybrid participation in the Academy.
- To learn more about the ISPP Academy, including previous workshops, please visit <https://ispp.org/resources/academy/>
<https://ispp.org/resources/academy/academy-archive/>