Childcare Services

The Grand Hyatt Athens provides babysitting services. This is organized through the Housekeeping Manager of the hotel, depending on each babysitter's availability, upon the guests' request for a specific day and time.

Health-related Resources (including Covid Testing)

Regarding Covid testing, the Grand Hyatt Athens provides an in-house Covid test room, open from 10:00am-11:00am and 6:00pm-7:00pm. An appointment is not needed; guests can simply show up to the testing room and meet the doctor.

The cost for the PCR test is 60.00 Euros, while the rapid test comes to 30.00 Euros per person.

The test results should be expected within 3-24 hours (depending on the type of test and the doctor's volume of samples).

There is a pharmacy 3 minutes away from the hotel (on foot), called Superpharmacy.

The closest hospital to the Grand Hyatt Athens is Rea, and then Therapis, Andreas Syggros, Alexandra, Evangelismos, and Areteio.

HELPFUL CONFERENCE INFORMATION

The Grand Hyatt Athens also works with a private clinic should any of the guests ask for a doctor's visit to the hotel (they also accept patients at the clinic).

Questions?

The ISPP conference staff is available for questions at the registration table in the Ground Floor Foyer, Parthenon Corridor.

July 2022, Welcome to the ISPP Athens 2022 Conference from the President, Tereza Capelos

Dear Colleagues, it is a tremendous pleasure to be able to welcome you to my hometown, Athens, for our 2022 ISPP Annual Meeting. Καλώς ήλθατε! (Kalos ilthate, Welcome).

This coming-together is very special to us all. After two years of online ISPP events, our program chairs, our ISPP leadership and our Central Office worked tirelessly to put together our conference with three key priorities in mind: to offer the exciting academic content we always expect, to accommodate as many participants as possible, and to provide a safe and enjoyable experience for all.

I want to thank all of you who registered for ISPP Athens 2022 for your dedicated support of ISPP. We appreciate your willingness to join us in Athens, during a time where the uncertainties of the pandemic are fewer, but still present. We are providing all attendees with updated covid guidelines; please adhere to them closely and protect yourself and those around you, so we can all enjoy a relaxed and safe conference. I also want to acknowledge that travel and health restrictions have kept away some of our colleagues who were keen to join us. If you are delivering your conference presentation from home, you will be able to join your on-site panel or roundtable via zoom. We thank you for your dedication to ISPP and for joining us remotely, and we wish to have you among us next year.

This year, our long list of over 850 attendees is testament to our ISPP family being truly diverse and global. We are joined by colleagues from 58 countries who will share their research insights and expertise, present their work, receive, and offer feedback, mentor and be mentored. Among us are colleagues who have been coming to our ISPP conferences for a long time, as well as colleagues who are new to our society. A big welcome to you all – we look forward to enriching our theoretical and methodological approaches, challenging our assumptions, and learning from you.

Our conference theme is “Democracy as an Achievement: Recognizing Tensions, Challenges, and Aspirations through Political Psychology.” As I noted last year when we announced this theme, ‘seeing democracy as an achievement invites us to appreciate that it takes time, requires hard work that is individual and collective, goes hand in hand with responsibility, and like personal development, it is an unfinished project’. A year later, I could not agree more. The panels, roundtables, blitz presentations and posters in our conference engage with the political psychology of the aspirations, challenges, and tensions that determine our individual, interpersonal, group-level and collective experiences towards the development of democracy around the world. Taken together, your presentations will offer a comprehensive conceptual and empirical investigation that synthesize knowledge from political science, psychology, sociology, ethnic studies, anthropology, history, economics, history, media and communication studies and philosophy. Our collective knowledge across 160 sessions in this conference is indeed significant and selecting which session to attend will be a difficult choice. We have permission to be greedy and want to join them all!

Please also join our three Keynote Presentations, dedicated to advance these exchanges. I am delighted to introduce our invited speakers: Nicolas Demertzis, Professor at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens and Director of the National Centre for Social Research (EKKE) in Greece. Noëlle McAfee, Professor of Philosophy at Emory University with a secondary appointment as Professor of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences. And Paul Nesbitt Larking, Professor Emeritus at Huron University College (Canada) and former ISPP President. Their thought-provoking presentations engage with the challenges of 'achieving democracy' from different and equally valuable theoretical and empirical approaches. Do not neglect to join the Roundtable 'Democracy as an Achievement' where our keynotes and I will be joined by experts in the field, as we discuss the complementarity of our approaches and draw new insights from their synthesis.

During our conference we will have many opportunities to celebrate and honour achievement. Please join our Awards Ceremony, where we show our gratitude for the achievements of old and new members of our society who have contributed significantly to the promotion of political psychology scholarship around the world. Our Lifetime Achievement Awards Committee chaired by Daphna Canetti and our ISPP Output Awards Committee chaired by James Gibson reviewed nominations and selected the recipients of our ten ISPP awards. I want to thank all of you who submitted nominations, and my dear colleagues who served in these committees. Their dedicated service, their insights, and their proven commitment to ISPP are much appreciated.

Please also join our Commemorating Roundtable that honours the life and contributions of beloved colleagues who are no longer with us: Emile Bruneau, Martin Heisler, Bob Jervis, Herbert Kelman, Cheryl Koopman, Sam McFarland, Jim Sidanius, and Jerry Post. Scholars who worked with Bob Jervis, Sam McFarland and Jim Sidanius have also put together dedicated panels in their memory. Please join these special sessions that celebrate their legacy and appreciate the knowledge with which they have gifted us.

Political psychology is a social affair and together we make it better. Join our Business Meeting where we will share news about our society and discuss upcoming developments that are of interest to our members and our elected officers; and do not miss our Journal Editors Session where you can stay updated with our two journals: Political Psychology and Advances. To learn about groups promoting the study of political psychology around the world, join our Regional Political Psychology Roundtable where regional political psychology teams come together to discuss the present successes, upcoming challenges, and future visions of political psychology around the world.

And please join our Forum Roundtable 'Political Psychologists Living through War and Conflict', an informal roundtable where political psychologists affected by active war and conflict share their personal experiences with our society. We have many opportunities in the program to discuss our research, but this forum-like roundtable gives the floor to colleagues who want to share their own experiences living through conflict, crises, and war. This roundtable will help us stay focused on how we can support our political psychology colleagues who currently face loss and disruption of their lives and their professional responsibilities. This roundtable will also address how our political psychology networks are affected by wars, crises and conflicts.

Political psychologists in our meeting come with a range of experiences and expertise. Join the fantastic interactive sessions, mentoring and socializing events by our Early Career Committee, and the panels organized by our Scholars Under Threat Committee where you will learn more about our twinning program, and how to get involved in the SUT and its activities. My heartfelt thanks to the amazing contributions of these committees that are sensitive to the needs of our early career members and offer support to political psychologists around the world that face persecution.

Join our social events! Our academic content is going to demand much of your time so save up some steam to unwind during our Welcome Reception, the Early Career Committee Social Hour, the Mentoring Lunch, and the Awards Reception. After two years of online-only contact, let us spend valuable time together not just as colleagues and as friends. The lunch breaks and dinners are open for this reason. Also don't forget to venture outside the hotel. Athens is one of the world's oldest cities, with rich heritage, histories and cultures spanning 3,400 years. All this is yours to explore and enjoy, so make it part of your conference experience. We have handy guides with tips and suggestions to get you started.

None of the above would be possible without the tireless efforts of our ISPP 2022 Program Chairs, Stavroula Chrona and Alex Theodoridis, Stavroula and Alex, I am deeply appreciative of your service and your tireless commitment to make this conference a success! Thank you!

This year we received so many high-quality submissions - sifting through a very large volume of proposals to put together this excellent program has not been an easy job. Stavroula and Alex were assisted by our truly global team of section chairs. Their hard work and dedication gave our program a sound base. Working with this team has been amazing – thank you for your professionalism, diligence, and collaborative spirit!

I also want to thank our team of volunteers who offer their assistance in making sure the every-day details of the conference run smoothly. On behalf of ISPP, I want to express my appreciation for your kind gesture to volunteer. This is a generous contribution to the conference, and we value your dedication a great deal!

Last, but certainly not least, a big thank you to our ISPP Central Office, our Executive Director, Sev Bennett, and Minnie Chappell, our fantastic new Assistant to the Executive Director. Minnie, we are very excited to have you with us, and I cannot express my gratitude enough to you and Sev for your incredible diligence and attention to detail putting this event together.

Thank you for being part of ISPP Athens 2022 and I wish you a successful and safe conference.

WELCOME TO THE 45th ANNUAL MEETING OF THE INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY OF POLITICAL PSYCHOLOGY!

Καλωσορίσατε στην Αθήνα!

On behalf of the conference program team, we are delighted to welcome you to Athens and the ISPP 2022 Annual Meeting. After careful evaluation of pandemic risks, ISPP leadership made the decision earlier this year to opt for an in-person event. This shift back to something approaching the pre-pandemic status quo presented its share of unique challenges and required accounting for various contingencies. Even so, we are thrilled that our Athens conference will provide the long-awaited opportunity to come together as a society after two years of online events. We are privileged to be program co-chairs for this conference taking place in our personal and ancestral homeland, and we are excited to be able to host it as an in-person gathering.

Putting a conference of this size together is always a group effort. Accordingly, we assembled an outstanding, diverse team of world-class scholars from across the globe to serve as section chairs: Philippe Beauregard, University of Montreal; Ronit Berger, Queen's University Belfast; Héctor Carvacho, Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile; Elias Dinas, Oxford University and European University Institute; Stephanie Dornschneider, University College Dublin; Alexandra Filindra, University of Illinois, Chicago; Shana Gadarian, Syracuse University; Diego Garzia, University of Lausanne; Theofilos Gkinopoulos, University of Crete; Tsfira Grebelsky-Lichtman, Ono Academic College, The Hebrew University; Erin Hennes, Purdue University; Marika Landau-Wells, University of California, Berkeley; Thalia Magioglou, University of Westminster; Michael Meffert, Leiden University; Cecilia Mo, University of California, Berkeley; Allesandro Nai, University of Amsterdam; Angela X. Ocampo, University of Michigan; Lamprini Rori, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens; Karabo Sitto, University of Johannesburg; Irina Soboleva, Duke Kunshan University; Sofia Stathi, University of Greenwich; LaFleur Stephens-Dougan, Princeton University; Elizabeth Suhay, American University; and Özden Melis Uluğ, University of Sussex. We all owe special thanks to these scholars for their hard work in organizing the sessions and activities for their sections and their service to the Society.

The response to our call for papers was overwhelming, and we had far more excellent proposals than the schedule would fit, especially under lingering Covid-related capacity restrictions. We took several steps to maximize the number of high-quality proposals we could accept. We adjusted the schedule to create more slots. We implemented a new multi-stage review process and standby list that allowed us to adjust following cancelations and the lifting of Covid restrictions. In the first round, we limited each participant to a single primary presentation. This process was arduous, but well worth it because, in the end, a rigorous peer review yielded what we believe is a truly outstanding program of high-quality scholarship while including as many scholars as possible.

The conference begins on Wednesday July 14th at 9:00 and ends on July 17th at 6:30pm. Across these 4 days, we will have 160 sessions, including keynotes, panels, roundtables, blitzes and posters. While our conference is designed as an in-person event, with all sessions requiring on-site attendance, we have secured fast internet connections in select rooms that can support video speeds so we can accommodate colleagues to join us via Zoom because they are unable to travel. We have tried to consider country time zones within the available session slots in the program to make this as seamless an experience as possible, but we recognize that some slots in the program scheduled on Athens time might not be convenient for our colleagues around the world. Please also note that because our conference is not hybrid, we are not hosting any online-only panels.

The conference theme this year is "Democracy as an Achievement: Recognizing Tensions, Challenges, and Aspirations through Political Psychology." Our plenaries, all closely linked to our conference theme, and weave together a diverse range of insights. ISPP President Tereza Capelos will deliver the opening Presidential Address titled, "Democracy as an Achievement in the Era of Grievance Politics." Nicolas Demertzis will deliver a keynote on "Challenges, Paradoxes and the Emotionality of Democracy." We also welcome Noëlle McAfee, who will present "The Trouble with Populism (hint: it's not the people)." Paul Nesbitt-Larking will address, "The Republic of Uncertainty: Doubt, Indecision, and the Democratic Self." Capelos, Demertzis, McAfee and Nesbitt-Larking will also come together in the roundtable "Democracy as an Achievement" (Session 118) where they discuss the intersection and contact points of their work.

As noted in the President's welcome, the conference also features a Commemorating Roundtable to honour colleagues who are no longer with us (Session 64), and dedicated panels in memory of Jim Sidanius (Session 28), Sam McFarland (Session 82), and Bob Jervis (Session 100). The roundtable "Political Psychologists Living with War and Conflict" (Session 46) is a forum-like event that invites scholars to give their personal testimonies of war and conflict and the impact such events have had on their professional and personal lives. Representatives of regional political psychology teams and groups come together in Session 55 and give us a global picture of political psychology developments. On the morning of July 17th, the ISPP President and the Executive Officers will host the ISPP Business Meeting, and in Session 54 the journal editors will highlight the aims and objectives of Political Psychology and Advances in Political Psychology, undoubtedly a useful discussion for those seeking to publish their research in the ISPP journals.

In addition to the above, we want to highlight the two poster sessions on July 14 and 15 at 13:30-14:30, hosting over 100 posters, the panel "Democracy as a Challenge: Institutions, Culture, Communication, and Leadership," organized by the Political Psychology Research Committee (RC29) of IPSA (Session 1), and the panel "Social Identities and Conflict Narratives in Post-Conflict Societies" (Session 66), which will be followed by a short film on the "Narratives of Democracy." Note also the three excellent Early Career Committee events: the "Opportunities and Challenges During Career Trajectories" roundtable (Session 27), the "Dissertation is done, now what?" roundtable (Session 90), and "Getting Started: Leveraging Your Research Through Social Media" roundtable (Session 117). The "Scholars Under Threat" roundtable (Session 77), and the "Caucus of Concerned Scholars" (Session 96) will address some challenging issues presently facing academics.

We would like to thank ISPP President Dr Tereza Capelos, who has been extremely supportive leading into the conference, providing guidance, leadership, and advice. Her suggestions and inspiring comments have been truly invaluable. Her gracious accommodation of our ideas throughout all stages of planning was reassuring – and made our job much easier. Thank you so much, Tereza!

We also want to thank the ISSP Central Office team for their outstanding support: Sev Bennett (Executive Director) and Minnie Chappell (Assistant to the Executive Director).

A big thank you also to the keynote speakers and presenters across panels, roundtables, blitzes and posters, and to all our attendees, for joining us this summer in Athens. We hope you will enjoy this conference as much as we will. To share this conference experience with colleagues and students of political psychology around the world, you can tweet #ISPP2022Athens and tag our Twitter account @PolPsyISPP.

From Early Career Committee Chair

EARLY CAREER COMMITTEE WELCOME 2022

Dear colleagues:

On behalf of the Early Career Committee (ECC), I want to welcome everyone to Athens, Greece. We are very excited to have you all here, and in-person, for our 45th Annual Meeting of the International Society of Political Psychology!

Our team has been working diligently put to together some excellent activities and opportunities for the early career scholars in attendance. First, our Mentoring Luncheon coordinators, Nina Spälti and Rongbo Jin, have recruited a dedicated group of mentors from a range of diverse personal and professional backgrounds. Each mentor will be meeting with a small group of early career scholars for our traditional Mentoring Luncheon. The luncheon will be held in a new format this year. On Thursday, 14 July at 1215 (12:15pm), mentors and mentees will convene in Foyer Zeus III. From there, individual mentors will take their small group of mentees off-site for lunch. We hope this new format will offer a more flexible and informal setting for mentees to discuss their research, career-relevant matters, and a variety of career dynamics with their chosen mentors.

Second, our Professional Development Coordinators (Henriette Mueller and Jasper van Assche) have organized three roundtable sessions relevant to the challenges of early career scholars. The first "The Dissertation is done, now what?" (16 July from 1045 to 1215 / 10:45am to 12:15pm in Metis III-IV) is an authors-meet-editors style workshop on publishing in academic journals. Next, "Opportunities and Challenges During Career Trajectories" (14 July from 1430 to 1600 / 1:30pm to 3:00pm in Metis III-IV) focuses on navigating career transitions post-PhD including the tenure-track process. Finally, "Getting Started: Leveraging Your Research Through Social Media" (17 July from 1045 to 1215 / 10:45am to 12:15pm in Metis III-IV) provides advice on developing a social media presence as an early career scholar. Please mark these events in your calendars, as we look forward to seeing you there.

And last, but not least, we will be hosting our popular ECC Social Hour on Friday, 15 July from 1900 to 2000 (7:00pm to 8:00pm) in the Ground Floor Foyer. We hope you can join us for some relaxation and socialization among colleagues from around the world. The social hour also provides an opportunity to meet some of the ECC officers and learn more about what we do throughout the entire year.

Thanks to the continuous support of the ISPP Governing Council, we were able to provide 18 ECC Travel Awards to the following scholars: Berfin Acar (Sabanci University), Aldo Barrita (University of Nevada, Las Vegas), Luiz Coletto (Federal University of Minas Gerais), Silvana D'Ottone (Pontificia

We also encourage you to follow ISPP’s social media accounts during the meeting and use the hashtag #ISPP2022 to share your experiences, research findings from your work, and insights from others’ research. The ECC social media accounts will keep you apprised of key events, interesting panels, and roundtables. Be sure to follow us on Twitter (@PolPsyISPP), “like” us on the ISPP Facebook page (<https://www.facebook.com/PolPsyISPP>), connect with us on LinkedIn (<https://www.linkedin.com/in/intlsocpolpsych/>), and visit our Medium page (@PolPsyISPP) to stay up to date with the activities of the ISPP’s early career members. Our Web Resources Coordinator, Daniel Valdenegro, has worked tirelessly throughout the year to ensure that new content highlighting the accomplishments of early career ISPP members is disseminated over social media. As always, we appreciate any comments, advice or feedback on how we can improve. You can email us at ecc@ispp.org.

Finally, I want to thank Tijana Karic for her support as Chair-Elect, and Mukadder Okuyan for her continuous guidance as Ex-Officio Chair. I want to acknowledge the efforts of our Newsletter editors, Amena Amer and Felipe Vilanova, who kept us informed through two thought-provoking newsletters. If you haven’t read them yet, I strongly encourage you to check out the insightful contributions in the newsletters, available on the ISPP website. I thank all the 2021-2022 Early Career Committee officers for their hard work and dedication in this extremely challenging year as we resume in-person activities in a “new normal.” It has been an honor to serve with you.

I hope you all have a wonderful time in Athens!

SESSION TYPES/SOCIAL GATHERINGS

Panel Sessions

Panel sessions are made up of 3 to 5 papers. Authors on these panels will have 10 to 15 minutes to present their paper live during the session. You will need to provide your materials to the Chair or person whose laptop will be connected to the projector no later than shortly before the start of your session. Preenters will speak according to the order of papers in the program. The Chair or another presenter can advance through your presentation materials while you speak.

Roundtable Sessions

Roundtables provide a space for up to 5 presenters to discuss a theme or topic. These sessions are more interactive than panels; the Chairs of roundtables will facilitate discussion and call on speakers and audience to participate.

Blitz Sessions

Blitz (lightning-fast) sessions are meeting spaces for 6-8 presenters to present their work in a shortened format. Blitz presentations should include no more than 4 slides. The Chair will facilitate discussion among panelists and audience members.

Specialized Social Rendezvous

Recent virtual conferences included meet-and-greet online social sessions for groups of attendees with shared interests or backgrounds. To help generate that sort of informal networking in-person, we are suggesting rendezvous times for various groups of scholars. As opposed to our conference-wide, catered receptions and gatherings, these meeting times are simply designed to facilitate coordination so that those interested can gather in the lobby at the appointed time and head out for self-organized group meals.

Presidential Address: Democracy as an Achievement in the Era of Grievance Politics

Tereza Capelos (University of Birmingham, U.K.)

Contemporary politics is often labelled 'angry', 'uncivil', and 'vengeful'. As citizens see party politics and intergroup relations as polarized struggles, their anger, envy, hatred, resentment, and schadenfreude give rise to uncompromising anti-preferences, toxic intolerances, and implicit or explicit support for political violence. These expressions of grievance are recognised as significant threats for democracies around the world.

Borrowing from Winnicott (1950), I invite us to approach democracy not as a 'state' under threat, but as an individual and collective achievement, founded on acknowledging frustrations, respecting differences, and seeking pro-social solutions. Approaching democracy as an ongoing project, similar to our own maturation, urges us to examine the psychological processes that take place at the intrapersonal, interpersonal and socio-political levels that contribute to, or hinder, development and wellbeing. This affords a far richer understanding of the political psychology of contemporary national, regional, and global politics.

This conversation is meaningful to me both academically and personally. In recent years, I have pondered how we as political psychologists make sense of unwanted, painful, and often misrecognised and mislabelled negative emotionality in politics. To understand this better, I have drawn valuable insights from disciplines outside my own speciality, and collaborated with scholars from sociology, philosophy, international relations, psychology, and psychoanalysis. These collaborations inform the research I will discuss here, drawing examples from published and ongoing research projects: the anxious psychology of the reactionary orientation, expanding on the links between frustration and aggression; the reactionary orientation's discomfort with uncertainty and the desire to urgently split off from the present in pursuit of an all-good past; the cognitive and affective distortions that can explain the slide into ressentimentful politics marked by envy, shame, ineffacious anger, exaggerated threat of attack, and morally righteous victimhood; the politics of denial that compromise reality testing, fuel hatred and promote hostility in social relations; the significance of becoming at ease with uncertainty for enhancing reality testing and building trusting relations. In closing, I share my preliminary thoughts on gratitude as the antidote to grievance politics and invite your contributions in the discussion of democracy as an achievement. To quote again Winnicott (1950, p.185) 'This is a large subject, and it deserves the attention of large-minded people'.

PLENARIES

Friday, July 15, 6:00pm – 7:00pm

Keynote 1: Challenges, Paradoxes and the Emotionality of Democracy

Nicolas Demertzis (National and Kapodistrian University of Athens; National Centre for Social Research EKKE, Greece)

Over the last twenty years or so it is assumed that democracy is in the wane. If the claim of a good number of political analysts that a wave of autocratization is under way is too much, the fact is that many consolidated and newly established democracies are at pains to deliver their promises. Nevertheless, in practice, democracy is by definition a fragile political project, while in theory is an essentially contested concept. The interplay between democratization and de-democratization is a world-wide constant historical process and therefore concerns about the quality and survival of democracy have been raised many decades before “democratic deficit”, “post-democracy”, and “managed democracy” gain currency.

Under the double dynamic of societal acceleration and global accumulation of capital democracies fall sort in according social justice, fighting multiple discriminations, and responding to citizens’ demands for social inclusion, recognition and dignity. As a consequence, a repertory of emotional-political styles have given rise to from apathy, alienation and cynicism to political malaise and moral anger. These reactions stem from several challenges democracy is facing in our neo-liberal times. Among these challenges are the discrepancy between political and socio-economic equality, the crisis of public knowledge and public communication, world-wide geopolitical confrontations and securitization. These challenges are intertwined with a couple of paradoxes such as the pertinent tension of freedom and equality, the tripling of the citizen in her capacity as producer, consumer, and shareholder, as well as the diffuse support of democracy emanating from authoritarian value orientations.

These challenges and paradoxes imply the sheer assumption that we cannot have democracy without democrats either at the elite or the mass public level. Moving along and dealing with these challenges and paradoxes is contingent upon (a) the mitigation of wealth disparities and the efficiency in providing not only equal opportunities but also equal conditions to the less privileged citizens so that reactionary anti-politics to wither away in favor of more constructive and participatory politics; (b) the revival of republican values and civic virtues conducive to social solidarity vis-à-vis neoliberal individualist meritocracy; (c) political- emotional reflexivity which means that democrats are called upon to be assertive in demanding equity, solidarity, and dignity but not in an envious manner or fueled by ressentiment.

Saturday July 16, 5:00pm – 6:00pm

Keynote 2: The Trouble with Populism (hint: it's not the people)

Noëlle McAfee (Emory University, USA)

Over the past few decades, populism has been on the rise throughout the world, leading to a vast scholarly literature attempting to define and make sense of the phenomenon, which most theorists see as troubling. From Viktor Orban's national populism in Hungary to Hugo Chavez's socialist populism in Venezuela, populist leaders have derived their legitimacy from popular support even as they engage in authoritarian politics. This new phenomenon of competitive authoritarianism gives rise to worries that giving free reign to movements for popular sovereignty, that is, democracy, can lead to illiberal politics. Accordingly, the literature on populism seems to point to a troubling conclusion: popular movements can lead to anti-democratic politics, including demagoguery and authoritarianism. So, we are warned, beware of the people and any movements that act in the people's name, including left-leaning ones like the ones led in the previous decade by Bernie Sanders in the United States, SYRIZA in Greece, or Podemos in Spain. I think this analysis is mistaken. It tars all populisms with the same brush, ignoring key differences between ones that are democratic and ones that are ultimately authoritarian. As I will argue here, the latter emanate from a deep anxiety about large-group identity, leading to regression and archaic defenses. Troubling populisms, unlike benign ones, share two distinguishing features: (1) an opposition to pluralism and civil society and (2) a chronopolitics of a past golden era coupled with a conspiratorial narrative. Troubling populisms exhibit a paranoid structure, invoking "the people" but severely narrowing who counts as the true people or opportunities for popular power in the public sphere.

PLENARIES

Sunday July 17, 9:30am – 10:30am

Keynote 3: The Republic of Uncertainty: Doubt, Indecision, and the Democratic Self

Paul Nesbitt-Larking (Huron University College, Canada)

In the context of widespread eroding confidence in traditional political institutions, declining voting turnout, mediated disinformation, the personalization of politics, and the rise of authoritarian populisms, political literacy and the formation of the democratic self are increasingly vital focuses of enquiry. From a strategic standpoint, von Clausewitz refers to war negatively as the “realm of uncertainty.” Inverting his concept, we address the possibilities of democracy as a sphere in which to support and even celebrate uncertainty: the republic of uncertainty. Substituting republic for realm, we transform von Clausewitz’s monarchy into the people’s democracy. Returning to the very bases of democracy, we ask who constitutes the people and how will they come to agree on common rules and resource distribution. At the heart of these questions are challenges of political dialogue, agonistic pluralism, the narrative imagination, critical reasoning, and political empathy. Moving away from the fixed certainties, subterfuges, combative positionalities, and clear-cut decisions of politics as war, we consider the importance of uncertainty, suspended judgment and decision, tolerance of ambiguity, open listening, care for the other, and the admission of confusion and ignorance in the formation of the democratic self.

The 46th Annual Meeting

ISPP 2023: Understanding how social change emerges, evolves, and manifests in modern societies: The role of social norms in shaping human behavior

Where: Omni Mont-Royal – Montréal, Québec

When: July 9-11, 2023

President: Roberto Gonzalez (P. Universidad Católica de Chile)

Conference Program Co-Chairs: Amanda Friesen (Western University, Canada), Tania Gosselin (Université du Québec à Montréal), Rosa Rodriguez-Bailon (University of Granada, Spain)

Submission Deadline: December 4, 2022

The International Society of Political Psychology (ISPP) invites scholars from different disciplines (psychology, political science, psychiatry, history, sociology, economics, anthropology, among others) to share ideas, theories, and current research addressing political and psychological processes that take place at the individual, collective and societal levels, that in one way or another, relate to social change.

Societies constantly change. Sometimes, change takes time; such as the two centuries that have passed since the first feminists claimed equality between men and women and the continued struggle for bodily autonomy, economic parity, and other disparities today. In other cases, a few hours are enough to trigger major social movements, that lead to national and international conversations and policy change. Incremental progress and resulting backlashes emerge in the areas of gender equality, suffrage, LGBTQ+ rights and protections, civil liberties, and the integration or rejection of immigrants and other minority groups. Societies across the globe have seen a plethora of these examples, in which unexpected changes arise with varying degrees of spontaneity and are permanently installed, modifying the course of history.

In the Montréal, Québec, conference, we seek to address this and related phenomena by discussing cutting-edge interdisciplinary research aimed at understanding how social change emerges, evolves, and manifests in modern societies. We seek to stimulate discussions about the development of conceptual models of social change that advance our understanding of the underlying mechanisms that regulate people's behavior, set group memberships, and define what is socially desirable.

Across social sciences, the study of these mechanisms has been conducted using the cross-disciplinary concept of social norms. Although social norms involve top-down mechanisms, such as legal systems or internal regulations, it has been argued that much more commonly, social norms are a partly spontaneous, bottom-up, interactive process that emerge in social life (Cialdini, 2009; Hechter, & Opp, 2001; Legros, & Cislighi, 2020; Tankard, & Paluck, 2016). Though many factors may influence any given process of social change, changes in social norms seem to be present in all relevant social changes.

There are reasons to focus on the potential of social norms to explain social change. First, in contrast to cultural or economic changes that require long periods of time to consolidate, changes in social norms can be extremely fast, requiring minimum psychological engagement to be effective (see Cialdini, 2009; Tankard, & Paluck, 2016; Thaler, 2015). Second, the notion of a norm is a flexible concept used by all social sciences (with variations), which allows the development of a common ground of interdisciplinary understanding (Legros, & Cislighi, 2020). Norms are thus related to how citizens develop key capacities and motives necessary to participate meaningfully and effectively in public affairs, social life, and democratic processes that lead to social change. In this annual conference, we seek to discuss possible antecedents of norms that generate social change, factors predicting the emergence of new social norms, conditions under which these processes take place, and how norms arise and consolidate. We also expect to discuss how to intervene or promote the development of new norms that foster behavioral changes in different social domains.

We warmly invite members of ISPP and scholars from all disciplines and cultures using a wide range of theoretical and methodological approaches to submit their academic contributions and research to our annual conference. All types of submissions (proposals for individual papers, panels, roundtables, presentations, blitz, and posters) on any topic in political psychology are welcome.

The conference will offer participants the opportunity to learn from and interact with distinguished keynote speakers addressing social change and the roles of norms. As in past years, there is an opportunity to attend a panel discussion with the editors of our journals, Political Psychology and Advances in Political Psychology, as well as social opportunities for early-career scholars, mentoring sessions, our Scholars under Threat symposium, and finally, the ISPP Academy held prior to the conference.

Montréal is an accessible, multicultural, and amazing city that offers fascinating museums, performing arts venues, and world-class universities. The city also borders some of the most beautiful landscapes and waterways in North America. Come share, learn, and participate in the 2023 Montréal conference!

Roberta Sigel Early Career Scholar Paper Award 2023

The Sigel Award is given to early career scholar authors of the best papers presented at annual scientific meetings in a symposium, paper panel, or poster session.

ISPP first announced this award at its Vancouver meeting in 1996. Professor Sigel, whom the award honors, was a distinguished professor of political science at Rutgers University. She was the author and editor of seven books and many articles and book chapters, mostly in the areas of political socialization and democratic citizenship. She had many leadership roles in the American Political Science Association and has served as program chair, Vice-President and President of ISPP.

All ISPP early career scholars who are current dues paid members of ISPP and had their paper accepted for the 2022 Annual Meeting are eligible to be considered for the award to be presented during the 2023 meeting. Early career scholars are students (graduate or undergraduate) and faculty who received their Ph.D. within the last eight years. Each award carries a cash prize of $250 USD.

There are two awards with slightly different criteria to accommodate the authorship and publication practices in the various disciplines represented in ISPP:

- The first award is given to the best paper written by early career scholars only. In the case of multiple authors, all co-authors must be early career scholars.
- The second award is conferred to the best paper with an early career scholar first author. This award allows for a senior scholar co-author.

Please nominate (self-nominations are encouraged) eligible papers only (note all submissions as papers; poster format submissions are not acceptable) and submit them to the email below by January 15, 2023. Papers previously submitted to the Sigel Award are not eligible. All submissions will be read by the award committee, consisting of members of the Early Career Committee as well as senior scholars. Two papers will be selected strictly according to scientific excellence and their contribution to research in political psychology.

Best Dissertation Award 2023

The International Society of Political Psychology is pleased to announce a call for nominations for the Best Dissertation Award, given for the first time at the 2008 Annual Meeting in Paris.

All Ph.D. dissertations within the field of political psychology are eligible for consideration, regardless of home discipline. Dissertations should represent an independent piece of research that is the sole work of the author and gains the highest degree at the author's university.

Nominations are due by January 15, 2023, for dissertations completed and successfully defended between Jan. 1, 2022, and Dec. 31, 2022. Nominees must be current ISPP members. Nominations should be submitted electronically and must include a one-page abstract (300 word), a 10-page (3,000 word) summary of the dissertation, and a letter of recommendation from the thesis adviser or committee member, all in English.

The award will be presented at the ISPP 2023 Annual Meeting.

For more information, see <http://www.ispp.org/awards/best-dissertation>

Send nominations to the 2023 Award Committee Chair:

Gian Vittorio Caprara

Sapienza Università di Roma: gianvittorio.caprara@uniroma1.it

The award committee will request a copy of the full dissertation for those selected to participate in the second-round evaluation. If the dissertation is written in a language other than English, the full dissertation may be submitted in the original language for the second-round evaluation, and at least one qualified reader fluent in that language will be included as a committee member for the second-round evaluation.

EARLY CAREER SESSIONS

Roundtable: The Dissertation is done, now what?

Saturday, July 16, 2022, 10:45 AM-12:15 PM

This roundtable of scholars and editors will provide advice on the publications of dissertations and research articles. The conversation will also include advice on when it's ok to walk away from a publication and spark discussions on how promotion and tenure committees view projects coming out of the dissertation.

Moderation: Julie Wronski / Tijana Karić / Henriette Mueller

Guest Speakers:

- Sarah Jay (University of Limerick), Associate Editor, Political Psychology
- Anne Kende (Eötvös Loránd University), Associate Editor, European Journal of Social Psychology
- Chris Weber (University of Arizona), Co-Editor, Political Psychology
- Johanna Vollhardt (Clark University), Co-Editor, Journal of Social and Political Psychology

Roundtable: Opportunities and Challenges During Career Trajectories

Thursday, July 14, 2022, 2:30 PM – 4:00 PM

What are the challenges that young scholars encounter in transitioning from Ph.D. candidate to postdoc or assistant professorship, and how could they best be navigated and turned into opportunities? What are the best research, teaching, and publication dissemination practices during the tenure-track process? The roundtable will bring together scholars from different career phases and regions, i.e., postdoc, assistant professor, and associate/full professor, from both political science and psychology, providing advice and best practices for promoting research, building a tenure application, social media use, blogging research, developing a personal website, managing Google Scholar, etc.

Moderation: Julie Wronski / Tijana Karić / Jasper van Aasche

Guest Speakers:

- Jason Barabas, Dartmouth College, USA
- Tsfira Grebelsky-Lichtman, The Hebrew University, Israel
- Yasin Koc, University of Groningen, the Netherlands
- Karabo Sitto, University of Johannesburg, South Africa

Roundtable: Getting Started: Leveraging Your Research Through Social Media

Sunday, July 17, 2022, 10:45 AM – 12:15 PM

Developing a strategic social media presence can be challenging, especially as an early-career scholar. How to best present your research and convey key messages online? How to connect to other scholars in your field and build a growing and inclusive research network through social media? How to engage meaningfully across various platforms, including Twitter, Instagram, Facebook, and LinkedIn? Bringing together both communication and social

HELP SUPPORT SCHOLARS UNDER THREAT

Academic freedom is under attack in several countries around the world. ISPP has been reaching out in support of our colleagues, including financially where we can. Thank you to all who have contributed, but funds are still needed and gratefully accepted.

Go to <https://ispp.eventsair.com/ispp-members/donmod/Site/Register> to donate, or use the “Scholars Under Threat” button in the conference app.

Applications for funds are kept confidential and reviewed by ISPP’s Scholars Under Threat Committee.

For more information about ISPP’s activities including our New Twinning Program in support of scholars under threat, see https://www.ispp.org/about/scholars\_under\_threat.
