There are more! Guests can talk with the Concierge on site; it will be their pleasure to help to find what you are looking for. They are there every day.

Childcare Services

There is no babysitting service at the hotel, but there are external companies that will babysit on-site at the hotel. Here are recommendations from the Omni's Concierge:

Kiid : <https://kiid.ca/>

La lune sitter : <https://www.lalunesitters.com/>

*For security reasons, guests should book the service directly with their company of choice.

Health-related Resources (including Covid Testing)

The Omni has Covid test kits, including a teletest. They also have a doctor that can come directly to the hotel if needed and if available.

The closest care facility is Montréal General Hospital. In Quebec, it's easier to go to the hospital if you do not have a doctor or an appointment. The Emergency Room is open 24 hours. 1650 Cedar Avenue, 514-934-1934.

July 2023, Welcome to the ISPP Montréal 2023 Conference from the President, Roberto González

Dear Colleagues, it is a great pleasure to welcome you to Montreal for our 2023 ISPP Annual Meeting.

I would like to thank our conference and section chairs, the contributions of our ISPP leadership, and our Central Office for making our annual conference possible here in the beautiful city of Montréal. I also want to express my gratitude to all of you who registered to attend the meeting and for your continuous support of ISPP.

In this conference, we will have the opportunity to interact with more than 440 scholars from different disciplines (political science, social psychology, history, and sociology, among others) to share ideas, theories, and current research addressing political and psychological processes that take place at the individual, collective and societal levels, that in one way or another, relate to social change.

I would like to highlight the presence of colleagues who have been attending our ISPP conferences for years and the presence of 29 new Early Career Scholars, 95 students, and renowned academics and researchers from 40 countries and five continents of the world, who will present their research and ideas in 88 sessions, including panels, roundtables, blitz presentations, and posters. This speaks about the diversity and value of our research across the globe.

Our conference theme “Understanding how social change emerges, evolves, and manifests in modern societies: The role of social norms in shaping human behavior” attracted the attention of several panels, blitz presentations, roundtables, and posters that seek to address this and related phenomena by discussing cutting-edge interdisciplinary research aimed at understanding how social change emerges, evolves, and manifests in modern societies. I hope our conference will stimulate discussions about the development of conceptual models of social change that advance our understanding of the underlying mechanisms that regulate people’s behavior, set group memberships, and define what is socially desirable.

At this conference, we will have the opportunity to learn from and interact with distinguished keynote speakers addressing social change and the role of norms. Professor Monica Gerber (Universidad Diego Portales, Chile) will address the highly relevant topic “Justice and social change: the importance of procedural justice in shaping collective action”. Professor Emma Thomas (Finders University, Australia) will invite us to think and reflect on the new proposed approach to understanding social change “Recombining individual, group and societal factors to understand how collective action can (fail to) change the world”, a work that has been recently published in our journal Advances in Political Psychology. You are welcome to attend these two fantastic keynotes.

I would also invite you to attend the roundtable “Protecting the Democracy in polarized political contexts: the role of social norms”, where our keynotes Monica Gerber and Emma Thomas as well as professor Laura Stephenson (Western University, Canada), an expert on affective polarization, will jointly address this critical topic. Héctor Carvacho (P. Universidad Católica de Chile, Chile) will moderate the roundtable.

Our conference has also organized specific meetings where attendees will have the opportunity to interact with a range of experiences and expertise. The Early Career Scholars created two roundtables where scholars from political science and psychology, from different career stages, are expected to meet to discuss opportunities and challenges during career trajectories and examine strategies for publishing doctoral dissertations and research articles. The Caucus of Concerned Scholars has organized the session “Pathways into political psychology, challenges for the future” in which scholars will address the future of political psychology and the challenges that researchers might face when conducting research. The Scholars Under Threat Roundtable session organized by our Scholars Under Threat (SUT) Committee invites our attendees to learn more about our twinning program, share experiences, and participate in the SUT initiatives.

We invite you to join the two poster sessions on Sunday, July 9th and Monday, July 10th. We will have 22-23 posters each day, where colleagues will present their recent research on social norms, identity, and ideological conflicts, among many other topics.

Our annual conference is also a unique space to celebrate and recognize the outstanding contributions of our members and scholars working in political psychology. Please join our Awards Ceremony, where we express our gratitude for the achievements of old and new members of our society who have contributed significantly to the promotion of political psychology scholarship around the world. Our Lifetime Achievement Awards Committee, chaired by Professor Jorge Manzi and our ISPP Output Awards Committee, chaired by Professor Gianvittorio Caprara reviewed nominations and selected the recipients of our ten ISPP awards. I want to thank especially all of you who submitted nominations and the 30 colleagues who served on these very important committees.

Join our social events! Socializing is a crucial aspect of our in-person meetings. Meet your colleagues, early career scholars, and friends in the three receptions contemplated in the program. The social hour organized by the Early Career Scholars is designed to bring together students and other early career scholars to encourage community within ISPP. The event is open to all early career scholars. And for those who have confirmation from the organizers, don't forget to attend Mentoring Lunch on Sunday, July 9. Many thanks to the organizers and mentors who helped to make this popular event possible again for this year.

I would like to thank Gizem Arikan for organizing the ISPP Academy. This year 45 young scholars from different disciplines and countries will be actively involved in discussing political psychology topics for 3 days prior to the conference. Thanks to Johanna Dunaway, Ana Figueiredo, Yasin Koc, Rezvan Moghaddam, Felicia Pratto, André Sales, Salvador Sandoval, Hermann Swart, David Redlawsk, and Nicholas Valentino for serving as instructors.

We also invite all current ISPP members to attend our Business Meeting on Monday, July 10th between 17:20 and 18:20 hours in room Automne, where you will have the opportunity to learn more about our society and discuss upcoming developments that interest our members and our elected officers.

Montréal is a city with a rich cultural heritage and diverse attractions that inspire and delight visitors of all ages. The Montréal Museum of Fine Arts showcases an impressive collection of art from around the world, providing a fascinating window into history and culture. The city also borders some of the most beautiful landscapes and waterways in North America. Whatever your interests, Montreal has something for everyone, so come and explore this vibrant and inspiring city!

Thank you Amanda Friesen, Tania Gosselin, and Rosa Rodriguez-Bailon, for your outstanding leadership in coordinating the work of the 12 sections of the conference; your work is invaluable. I would also like to thank 27 colleagues from different disciplines and regions worldwide who served as the 12 section chairs. They worked hard to review all submissions and contributed enormously to organizing the conference program; we genuinely appreciate your significant contribution.

I also would like to thank our fantastic team of student volunteers who will be serving in different roles throughout the conference to make it a success. On behalf of the ISPP community, I want to express my appreciation for your commitment to ISPP.

Last, but not least, thank you very much to our Executive Director, Sev Bennett, and Minnie Chappell, our Executive Assistant. Thanks for your hard work and commitment, for constantly supporting the chairs and section chairs to produce the program, and for organizing the conference as a whole.

I wish you all the very best experience at our annual conference.

WELCOME TO THE 46th ANNUAL MEETING OF THE INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY OF POLITICAL PSYCHOLOGY!

Welcome to Montreal and the 2023 Annual Meeting of ISPP!

Bienvenue à Montréal et au congrès annuel de l'ISPP !

iBienvenidos/as a Montreal y a la conferencia anual de 2023 de la ISPP!

We are pleased to present an interesting and exciting program with the latest research on a variety of subjects and themes.

The conference theme this year is devoted to social change through social norms. Our plenary talks, very much related to the conference theme, will discuss cutting-edge interdisciplinary research to understand how social norms shape and manifest in modern societies. ISPP President Roberto Gonzalez will deliver the Presidential Address entitled, "Understanding how social change emerges, evolves, and manifests in modern societies: The role of social norms in shaping human behavior. Emma Thomas will talk about "Recombining individual, group and societal factors to understand how collective action can (fail to) change the world." We are also delighted by the keynote that Monica Gerber focuses on "Justice and social change: the importance of procedural justice in shaping collective action." Furthermore, we wrapped up 8 vibrant sessions where the research of diverse scholars on social change and transformation, intergroup relations and identities, taking into account the key role of social norms in all these processes will be presented.

Special thanks to ISPP staff Minnie Chappell and Sev Bennett for their tireless and diligent work in helping us put together this program. We also wish to thank the section chairs who dedicated a lot of time to reviewing submissions and thoughtfully forming panels. Any alterations to their vision are due to attendance changes and our own pragmatic merging of program components!

WELCOME LETTER

From 2023 Program Chairs

[French version]

Nous sommes heureuses de vous présenter un programme riche des toutes dernières recherches sur une vaste gamme de thèmes.

Le thème de la conférence de cette année est le changement social en lien avec les normes sociales. Les conférences plénières porteront sur des recherches interdisciplinaires de pointe visant à mieux comprendre comment les normes sociales se manifestent dans les sociétés modernes et les façonnent. Le président de l'ISPP, Roberto Gonzalez, prononcera le discours présidentiel sur le rôle des normes sociales dans la formation du comportement humain (« Understanding how social change emerges, evolves, and manifests in modern societies: The role of social norms in shaping human behavior »). Nous aurons le plaisir d'entendre la conférencière invitée Emma Thomas sur le rôle de l'action collective (« Recombining individual, group and societal factors to understand how collective action can (fail to) change the world »). Nous sommes également ravies de la présence de Monica Gerber à titre de conférencière invitée, qui s'exprimera sur le thème de la justice et du changement social ("Justice and social change: the importance of procedural justice in shaping collective action"). De plus, huit panels mettent en avant des recherches sur le changement et la transformation sociale, les relations intergroupes et les identités avec une préoccupation centrale pour le rôle clé des normes sociales.

Nous remercions tout particulièrement Minnie Chappell et Severine Bennett de l'ISPP pour le soutien aussi rigoureux qu'indéfectible qu'elles ont apporté à la préparation du programme. Nous souhaitons également remercier les responsables des sections, qui ont généreusement examiné les propositions et réfléchi à la composition des panels. Toute modification à leur vision est due à l'évolution du nombre de participant.es, de même qu'à notre fusion pragmatique des éléments du programme.

EARLY CAREER COMMITTEE WELCOME 2023

Dear colleagues,

On behalf of the Early Career Committee (ECC), I want to welcome everyone to Montreal, Canada. We are very excited to have you all here, and in-person, for our 46th Annual Meeting of the International Society of Political Psychology!

Our team has been working diligently put to together some excellent activities and opportunities for the early career scholars in attendance. We hope these activities will create opportunities for you to initiate collaborations and advance your research and careers.

Our Mentoring Luncheon coordinators, Slieman Halabi and Rongbo Jin, have recruited a dedicated group of mentors from a range of diverse personal and professional backgrounds. Each mentor will be meeting with a small group of early career scholars for our traditional Mentoring Luncheon. The luncheon will be held at the hotel, in room Pierre de Coubertin, on Sunday, 9 July at 1:20 pm.

Second, our Professional Development Coordinators (Fabian Neuner and Ruri Takizawa) have organized two roundtable sessions relevant to the challenges of early career scholars. The first, "The Dissertation is done, now what?" (10 July from 3:40pm to 5:10pm in Automne) is an authors-meet-editors style workshop on publishing in academic journals. Next, "Opportunities and Challenges during Career Trajectories" (11 July from 3:10pm to 4:40pm in Automne) focuses on navigating career transitions post-PhD including the tenure-track process. Finally, there will be an Elevator Pitch Workshop (11 July from 1:30pm to 3pm in Printemps) that will help you practice to speak about your research in an engaging manner. Please mark these events in your calendars, as we look forward to seeing you there.

The ECC will also be hosting our popular ECC Social Hour on Monday, 10 July from 8pm to 9pm in room Pierre de Coubertin. We hope you can join us for some relaxation and socialization among colleagues from around the world. The social hour also provides an opportunity to meet some of the ECC officers and learn more about what we do throughout the entire year.

Thanks to the continuous support of the ISPP Governing Council, we were able to provide 19 ECC Travel Awards to the following scholars: Cansu Paksoy (Koc University, Turkey), Zoe Chen-Zhao (University of Edinburgh), Mabelle Kretchner (Bar-Ilan University), Anna Potoczek (University of Warsaw), Nico Mokros (Institute for Interdisciplinary Research on Conflict and Violence at Bielefeld University), Mar Montoya-Lozano (University of Granada), Rebekka Kesberg (University of Sussex), Elisabetta Mannoni (Central European University), Ramzi Abou Ismail (University of Kent), Efisio Manunta (University

We also encourage you to follow ISPP's social media accounts during the meeting and use the hashtag #ISPP2023 to share your experiences, research findings from your work, and insights from others' research. The ECC social media accounts will keep you apprised of key events, interesting panels, and roundtables. Be sure to follow us on Twitter (@PolPsyISPP), "like" us on the ISPP Facebook page (<https://www.facebook.com/PolPsyISPP>), connect with us on LinkedIn (<https://www.linkedin.com/in/intlsocpolpsych/>), and visit our Medium page (@PolPsyISPP) to stay up to date with the activities of the ISPP's early career members. As always, we appreciate any comments, advice or feedback on how we can improve. You can email us at ecc@ispp.org.

Finally, I want to thank Myrto Pantazi for her support as Chair-Elect, and Julie Wronski for her continuous guidance as Ex-Officio Chair. I want to acknowledge the efforts of our Newsletter editors, Jessica Gale and Felipe Vilanova, who kept us informed through two thought-provoking newsletters. If you haven't read them yet, I strongly encourage you to check out the insightful contributions in the newsletters, available on the ISPP website. I thank all the 2022-2023 Early Career Committee officers for their hard work and dedication. It has been an honor to serve with you.

I hope you all have a wonderful time in Montreal!

Panel Sessions

Panel sessions are made up of 3 to 5 papers. Authors on these panels will have 10 to 15 minutes to present their paper live during the session. You will need to provide your materials to the Chair or person whose laptop will be connected to the projector no later than shortly before the start of your session. Presenters will speak according to the order of papers in the program. The Chair or another presenter can advance through your presentation materials while you speak.

Roundtable Sessions

Roundtables provide a space for up to 5 presenters to discuss a theme or topic. These sessions are more interactive than panels; the Chairs of roundtables will facilitate discussion and call on speakers and audience to participate.

Blitz Sessions

Blitz (lightning-fast) sessions are meeting spaces for 6-8 presenters to present their work in a shortened format. Blitz presentations should include no more than 4 slides. The Chair will facilitate discussion among panelists and audience members.

Presidential Address: The role of social norms in shaping human behavior and social change

Roberto González (Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile, Chile)

Societies constantly change. Sometimes, change takes time, such as the two centuries that have passed since the first feminists claimed equality between men and women. In other cases, few hours are enough to trigger major social movements that lead to national and international conversations and policy change. Societies across the globe have seen a plethora of these examples, in which unexpected changes arise with varying degrees of spontaneity and are permanently installed, modifying the course of history.

In this address, I will review and discuss cutting-edge interdisciplinary research to understand how social change emerges, evolves, and manifests in modern societies. I seek to stimulate discussions about developing conceptual models of social change that advance our understanding of the underlying mechanisms that regulate people's behavior, set group memberships, and define what is socially desirable. Across social sciences, the study of these mechanisms has been conducted using the cross-disciplinary concept of social norms. Although social norms involve top-down mechanisms, such as legal systems or internal regulations, it has been argued that much more commonly, social norms are partly spontaneous, bottom-up, interactive processes that emerge in social life. Though many factors may influence any given process of social change, changes in social norms seem to be present in all relevant social changes.

There are reasons to focus on the potential of social norms to explain social change. First, in contrast to cultural or economic changes that require long periods to consolidate, changes in social norms can be extremely fast, requiring minimum psychological engagement to be effective. Second, the notion of a norm is a flexible concept used by all social sciences (with variations), which allows the development of a common ground of interdisciplinary understanding. Finally, norms are related to how citizens develop key capacities and motives necessary to participate meaningfully and effectively in public affairs, social life, and democratic processes that lead to social change. Conceptual and practical implications will be addressed.

Monday, July 10, 7:00pm – 8:00pm

Keynote 1: Recombining individual, group and societal factors to understand how collective action can (fail to) change the world

Emma Thomas, PhD (Flinders University, Australia)

One of the primary ways that people change societies is by acting with others to engage in protest and other forms of collective action. Indeed, archival data suggest that there has been a dramatic increase in the emergence, spread and reach of popular, grassroots social movements. Alongside this rapid growth in popular protest, there has been an upsurge in research on collective action which has been both productive and fragmenting. We have an excellent understanding of the many factors that shape participation in collective action, but we lack a framework that explains how these factors fit together. In this talk I will extend upon the insights offered by the Social Identity Model of Collective Action and the Integrated Model of Personality and Social Psychological Theories of Collective Action to propose a higher-order theoretical integration, the MOBILISE model. MOBILISE draws on a systems meta-theory to propose that collective action engagement and outcomes are determined by a dynamic interaction between factors that shape people as individuals, members of groups, and societies. I will present data from cross-sectional, longitudinal and experimental studies demonstrating the group-level and interactive bases of commitment to change the world. Our work identifies how novel groups form through (online and offline) interactions in which people craft norms for action and, in doing so, become the change that they want to see in the world.

Keynote 2: Justice and social change: the importance of procedural justice in shaping collective action

Monica M. Gerber (Universidad Diego Portales, Chile)

In recent decades the world has witnessed a significant number of violent and non-violent protests, as well as instances of police violence and human rights violations during such events. Yet, why are people willing to participate in collective action, and under what circumstances does violence become an option? Research on the Social Psychology of Social Movements has shown that individuals are more likely to engage in collective action when they perceive an injustice or grievance that needs to be addressed. While injustice is recognized as a catalyst for collective action, the underlying processes by which it leads to such action remain largely unknown. Merely experiencing injustice is often insufficient to prompt collective action. Furthermore, there is a lack of understanding regarding the factors that drive individuals to resort to violent forms of protest. In this presentation, I propose a dialogue between the Social Psychology of Social Movements and the Theory of Procedural Justice. I argue that considering the relationship between injustice and social change from the perspective of Procedural Justice Theory can provide valuable insights. First, people care to a great extent about the fairness and impartiality of the procedures used by those in a position of authority to make decisions and allocate resources. Individuals want to be treated with dignity and respect, and they care about whether their voices are taken into account. Procedural justice communicates a sense of fairness and legitimacy to individuals, even if they do not necessarily agree with the outcome. By promoting transparency, accountability, and impartiality, procedural justice can help to establish and maintain trust in authorities and social institutions. On the contrary, when people perceive that they have been treated unfairly, they might mobilize to change the order of things. Second, as we know from the perspective of Social Justice theories, situations of injustice are more likely to lead to collective action when people perceive that the procedures and treatments are unjust and inconsistent with their values of fairness and impartiality. It is therefore not enough to perceive an injustice (justice evaluation), people need to care about justice in the first place (normative justice). Finally, the perspective of Procedural Justice Theory can help us understand when different types of collective action are more likely to be preferred. Procedural injustice is a double-edged sword: while it can motivate people to mobilize, it can also delegitimize the authorities that have mistreated them. When authorities are no longer perceived as legitimate, non-violent collective action may seem unviable for achieving social change and violence may seem necessary. Based on the above, it can be proposed that procedural justice plays a crucial role in understanding how injustice shapes the dynamics of collective action.

Call for Proposals & Papers

SANTIAGO, CHILE July 4 – July 6, 2024

The 47th Annual Meeting

ISPP 2024: Dismantling Democracy: Insecurity, emotions and authoritarian populism

Where: Hotel InterContinental – Santiago, Chile

When: July 4-6, 2024

President: Catarina Kinnvall (Lund University, Sweden)

Conference Program Co-Chairs: Molly Andrews (University College London), Neil Ferguson (Liverpool Hope University), Siugmin Lay (Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile)

Submission Deadline: December 3, 2023

The International Society of Political Psychology (ISPP) invites scholars from different disciplines (political science, psychology, international relations, history, sociology, economics, anthropology, media and communication, gender studies, and more) to share ideas, theories, and current research on political and psychological processes that address the decline of political rights and democracy across the world as well as the insecurities and emotions that underlie such developments.

Almost 75% of the world's population lives in countries with a deterioration in civil liberties, driven by economic and physical insecurity, violent conflict, social injustice, and political grievances. Thirty years of social and demographic transformation since the end of the Cold War have also had significant impact on injustice across the world, including the changing nature of employment, and created new patterns of migration and asylum seeking. Moreover, the optimism of the Rio Earth Summit, Kyoto Protocol, and Paris Agreement has subsided as annual increases in global greenhouse gas emissions ensure unsustainability and climate catastrophe across the planet with associated climate anxieties and insecurities in their wake. For some populations – especially those whose lives are marked by wars, terrorism, displacement, urban marginalization, climate change and, more recently, the COVID-19 pandemic and the Russian invasion of Ukraine – insecurity is an ever-present potentiality and experience. Through political rhetoric, media and other forms of 'emotional governance', state leaders and powerful politicians can exploit an already precarious sociopolitical context – in which individuals and groups experience heightened anxieties and fears – by extending and intensifying efforts to mislead and disinform states, citizens, communities, organizations and voters. These disinformation processes fundamentally affect notions of reality, engender distrust of political opponents and undermine the capacity to develop healthy political dialogues. Rather than creating resilient states, communities and individuals, such processes are likely to induce, promote and prioritize emotions that increase insecurity and pave the way for more authoritarian forms of government.

For the Santiago conference, we encourage submissions that address any of these developments and related phenomena across the Global North and South. The conference will be an opportunity to discuss cutting-edge and cross-disciplinary research that aims to understand, develop and systematically organize knowledge and solutions to democratic decline and authoritarian politics in the light of heightened insecurity and conflict. We also encourage research that develops, validates and disseminates insights about the structural preconditions, emotional motivations and strategies used by authoritarian actors and by those who resist this process, such as youth activists, women's resistance movements, pro-democratic and pro-human right advocates, and 'networked' resistance carried out by, among others, investigative journalists and academics.

The theme is particularly suitable for the conference setting and efforts will be made to reach out to the wider Chilean society in order to integrate 'local' knowledges produced in conditions of post-totalitarianism.

We extend a warm welcome to ISPP members and scholars from all disciplines and countries and from all theoretical and methodological perspectives to submit their academic contributions and research to our annual conference. All types of submissions (proposals for individual papers, panels, roundtables, blitz presentations, and posters) on any topic in political psychology are equally welcome. There will be space accommodated for panels and roundtables held in Spanish in addition to those held in English.

The conference will offer participants the opportunity to learn from, and interact with, distinguished keynote speakers addressing democratic decline, insecurity, emotions and authoritarian politics. As in past years, there is an opportunity to attend a panel discussion with the editors of our journals, Political Psychology and Advances in Political Psychology, as well as social networking opportunities for early-career scholars, mentoring sessions, our Scholars under Threat symposium, and finally, the ISPP Academy held prior to the conference.

Dr. Molly Andrews, Honorary Professor of Political Psychology, Social Research Institute, University College London, UK. Program Co-Chair.

Dr. Neil Ferguson, Professor of Political Psychology, Liverpool Hope University, UK. Program Co-Chair.

Dr. Siugmin Lay, Assistant Research Professor in Social Psychology, Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile. Program Co-Chair.

Roberta Sigel Early Career Scholar Paper Award 2024

The Sigel Award is given to early career scholar authors of the best papers presented at annual scientific meetings in a symposium, paper panel, or poster session.

ISPP first announced this award at its Vancouver meeting in 1996. Professor Sigel, whom the award honors, was a distinguished professor of political science at Rutgers University. She was the author and editor of seven books and many articles and book chapters, mostly in the areas of political socialization and democratic citizenship. She had many leadership roles in the American Political Science Association and has served as program chair, Vice-President and President of ISPP.

All ISPP early career scholars who are current dues paid members of ISPP and had their paper accepted for the 2023 Annual Meeting are eligible to be considered for the award to be presented during the 2024 meeting. Early career scholars are students (graduate or undergraduate) and faculty who received their Ph.D. within the last eight years. Each award carries a cash prize of $250 USD.

There are two awards with slightly different criteria to accommodate the authorship and publication practices in the various disciplines represented in ISPP:

- The first (1) award is given to the best paper written by early career scholars only. In the case of multiple authors, all co-authors must be early career scholars.
- The second (2) award is conferred to the best paper with an early career scholar first author. This award allows for a senior scholar co-author.

Please nominate (self-nominations are encouraged) eligible papers only (note all submissions as papers; poster format submissions are not acceptable) and submit them to the email below by January 15, 2024. Papers previously submitted to the Sigel Award are not eligible. All submissions will be read by the award committee, consisting of members of the Early Career Committee as well as senior scholars. Two papers will be selected strictly according to scientific excellence and their contribution to research in political psychology.

For more information, see <http://www.ispp.org/awards/sigel>

Send nominations to the 2024 Award Committee Chairs:

- (1) Shelley McKeown Jones, Univ. of Bristol: s.mckeownjones@bristol.ac.uk
- (2) Sammyh Khan, Örebro University: Sammyh.Khan@oru.se

Best Dissertation Award 2024

The International Society of Political Psychology is pleased to announce a call for nominations for the Best Dissertation Award, given for the first time at the 2008 Annual Meeting in Paris.

All Ph.D. dissertations within the field of political psychology are eligible for consideration, regardless of home discipline. Dissertations should represent an independent piece of research that is the sole work of the author and gains the highest degree at the author's university.

Nominations are due by January 15, 2024, for dissertations completed and successfully defended between Jan. 1, 2023, and Dec. 31, 2023. Nominees must be current ISPP members. Nominations should be submitted electronically and must include a one-page abstract (300 word), a 10-page (3,000 word) summary of the dissertation, and a letter of recommendation from the thesis adviser or committee member, all in English.

The award will be presented at the ISPP 2024 Annual Meeting.

For more information, see <http://www.ispp.org/awards/best-dissertation>

Send nominations to the 2024 Award Committee Chair:

Eva Green, University of Lausanne: eva.green@unil.ch

The award committee will request a copy of the full dissertation for those selected to participate in the second-round evaluation. If the dissertation is written in a language other than English, the full dissertation may be submitted in the original language for the second-round evaluation, and at least one qualified reader fluent in that language will be included as a committee member for the second-round evaluation.

EARLY CAREER SESSIONS

Roundtable 1: Opportunities and Challenges During Career Trajectories

Monday, July 10, 2023, 3:40 PM-5:10 PM

This roundtable of scholars and editors will provide advice on the publications of dissertations and research articles. The conversation will also include advice on when it's ok to walk away from a publication and spark discussions on how promotion and tenure committees view projects coming out of the dissertation.

Moderation: Fabian Neuner / Ruri Takizawa

Guest Speakers:

- Aleksandra Cichocka (University of Kent, United Kingdom)
- Eric Groenendyk (University of Memphis, USA)
- Shelley McKeown-Jones (University of Bristol, United Kingdom)
- Joanne Miller (University of Delaware, USA)

Roundtable 2: The Dissertation is done, now what?

Tuesday, July 11, 2023, 3:10 PM – 4:40 PM

What are the challenges that young scholars encounter in transitioning from Ph.D. candidate to postdoc or assistant professorship, and how could they best be navigated and turned into opportunities? What are the best research, teaching, and publication dissemination practices during the tenure-track process? The roundtable will bring together scholars from different career phases and regions, i.e., postdoc, assistant professor, and associate/full professor, from both political science and psychology, providing advice and best practices for promoting research, building a tenure application, social media use, blogging research, developing a personal website, managing Google Scholar, etc.

Moderation: Julie Wronski / Ruri Takizawa

Guest Speakers:

- Antonia Eisenkoeck, Springer Nature, United Kingdom
- James Liu, Massey University, New Zealand
- Lilliana Mason, Johns Hopkins University, USA
- Iris Žeželj, University of Belgrade, Serbia

Elevator Pitch Workshop

Tuesday, July 11, 2023, 1:30 PM – 3:00 PM

What is the best frame for your research? How can you adjust for different audiences? A panel of experts will discuss the challenges of framing interdisciplinary research, etc. and participants will have a chance to role-play and practice how to speak about their research in an engaging manner.

Moderation: Fabian Neuner / Ruri Takizawa

Guest Coaches:

- Ana Figueiredo (Universidad de O'Higgins, Chile)
- Aleksander Ksiazkiewicz (University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, USA)
- Morris Levy (University of Southern California, USA)

MEMBERSHIP INFORMATION

ISPP
International Society of Political Psychology

Who We Are

ISPP is an interdisciplinary organization representing all fields of inquiry concerned with exploring the relationships between political and psychological processes. Members include psychologists, political scientists, psychiatrists, historians, sociologists, economists, anthropologists, as well as journalists, government officials and others. The Society is also international, with members from all regions of the world: the Americas, Europe, Asia, the Middle East, and Africa.

Benefits of Membership

- Reduced registration fees for annual scientific meetings
- Access to the Wiley Online Library for Political Psychology and Advances in Political Psychology
- Access to the Political Psychology and Advances in Political Psychology app
- E-mail delivery of ISPPNews, the Society's (almost) monthly newsletter
- Ability to apply for funding opportunities, such as Early Career Scholars Travel Grants
- Access to Members-only features via ISPP's Member Portal
- Occasional member discounts on items such as publications
- Voting privileges

2024 Conference Information

The 2024 Annual Scientific Meeting is planned to take place July 4-6, 2024 in Santiago, Chile at the InterContinental Hotel Santiago. This is the first time ISPP will hold its meeting in South America. The conference theme is "Dismantling Democracy: Insecurity, emotions and authoritarian populism." The Program Chairs are Molly Andrews (University College London), Neil Ferguson (Liverpool Hope University), and Siugmin Lay (Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile).

For more information about the conference go to <http://www.ispp.org/meetings>.
