

(Research Invitation) How Psychologists Perceive Other Scholars
University of Birmingham, UK

Hello,

My name is Shoko Watanabe, and I am a post-doctoral research fellow at the University of Birmingham in England. Together with Carissa Sharp (Associate Professor of Psychology of Religion) and Jon Catling (Professor of Psychology), we are reaching out to invite you to participate in a 15-minute online survey as part of a large-scale project looking at how academics perceive research and scholars from other disciplines.

We are seeking participation from people who meet the following eligibility criteria:

1. You are over 18 years old.
2. You are fluent in English (note: you do not need to be a native English speaker).
3. You have a doctoral degree in psychology (e.g., PhD).
4. You conduct psychological research and/or teach psychology at a university.
5. You have a valid institutional email address (e.g., ending in “.edu”, “.ac.uk”, etc.)

If you meet ALL of the above qualifications and are interested in helping, please click on the link below. The first part of the study consists of quick verification questions; upon confirming your eligibility, we will email you a separate link for the main study. This survey has been approved by the University of Birmingham Ethical Review Committee (ERN 1178).

Sign up here: <https://tinyurl.com/5n8v3saw>

Your participation would be a huge help to us! We recognize that your time is valuable, so we would like to offer you a $10 Amazon voucher for completing this study. We are able to send the voucher in the following currencies: UK (GBP), USA (USD), Canada (CAD), and Australia (AUD).

Please don't hesitate to email me (s.watanabe@bham.ac.uk) with any questions you may have.

Shoko Watanabe, PhD

Post-Doctoral Research Fellow
University of Birmingham