

Why Do We Collect Personal Data?

We collect personal data in order to process membership, registration for ISPP events, orders for items available for purchase, and to provide member benefits. The following information explains in more detail how your data is used and retained so that you are fully informed prior to your consent.

Data Controller

International Society of Political Psychology (ISPP)

P.O. Box 1213

Columbus, NC 28722 USA

info@ispp.org

Data Protection Officer

Severine Bennett

Executive Director

info@ispp.org

What We Do with Your Data

ISPP uses your data to process membership and event registrations, provide member benefits, process orders for items for purchase, and generate internal reports.

Who Will See Your Data

Primarily ISPP staff and account holders will be the ones who see data in the accounts in our online system. Others that might see your data are support staff of the software, Centium Software, when assisting ISPP staff with technical issues or questions. Those who might see limited or anonymous data include ISPP's Governing Council and committee members; staff of ISPP's journal publisher (name and e-mail address to provide online access for the journal); hotels with which ISPP contracts for guest rooms (name only to compare to overall hotel guest lists to ensure ISPP is given credit for all guests in the hotel for an ISPP event); local providers of conference supplies (name and affiliation, to print name badges); event attendees and the public (if you are presenting at an ISPP event, your name and affiliation only will be listed in the program); reporters (contact information only for those who have expressly opted they wish to be contacted by reporters).

How Long We Store Your Data

ISPP will keep your data in our online system for up to five years. If your account has had no activity for five years, it will be removed from the system. Some other data elements, such as listings in our conference programs, will remain available indefinitely.