

Catholic University of America Undergraduate Instructor Positions Open for Fall 2021 – Post March 2021

The Department of Psychology at the Catholic University of America is seeking instructors for the following undergraduate courses in Fall, 2021: Introduction to Biological Psychology and Brain and Behavior (those are similar courses, with one taught at a somewhat more intensive level than the other), Social Psychology, Abnormal Child Psychology, Psychology of Terrorism, and Psychology of Memory. We also seek an instructor for a graduate course entitled Biological and Cognitive Aspects of Behavior. A doctoral degree in psychology is required, and at this time we are planning for in-person classes. If you are interested in teaching any of those courses and would like more information, please contact Dr. Barry Wagner as soon as possible, wagnerb@cua.edu and attach a CV. Please forward this to anyone else who might be interested or might know interested applicants.
